Description

Step into 1741. This coral-red villa watches over Positano like it has for centuries, once home to Neapolitan merchants tracking their ships, now your private escape above the Amalfi Coast.

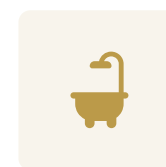

Ten bedrooms. Eleven bathrooms. Twenty guests. Villa Aurora spans three levels connected by a grand staircase, each floor opening onto terraces that frame the Mediterranean. The frescoed ceilings tell stories. The antique furniture remembers them. Every room holds museum-worthy pieces, yet feels like home.

Your mornings start on the portico, where grapevines shade original majolica tiles. Coffee tastes different here. The infinity pool floats above Positano's bay, surrounded by your private garden: 1,000 square meters of citrus, fig, and almond trees. Three terraces mean three different sunset spots.

Inside, two grand salons and a professional kitchen anchor the main floor. Each bedroom pairs period elegance with modern comfort: minibars, air conditioning, and ensuite bath...
