Description

Picture waking up to ocean views that stretch forever, your morning coffee in hand as the Dominican sun paints the horizon gold. That's just Tuesday at Villa Danila.

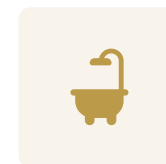

This seven-bedroom retreat in Casa de Campo's Costa Mar doesn't just sit on the landscape, it belongs to it. Stone walkways float over reflecting pools, leading you through tropical gardens to a pool that seems to spill into the Caribbean Sea. The architecture speaks the local language: soaring wooden ceilings that breathe with the breeze, walls of glass that erase the line between inside and out.

Each bedroom tells its own story through rich wood headboards and private terraces. The master suite? It's basically a small hotel suite with ocean views that make you forget your phone exists. Two bedrooms sleep four each, perfect when you're traveling with the whole crew.

Your days flow between the infinity pool, the private cinema where leather recliners wait for movie nights, and the outdoor dining ...
